The whole of the school's operations are structured with the view to being "dyslexia friendly". In addition to specialist English teachers, our Maths, Science, IT, DT and Art lessons are taught by teachers with specialist dyslexia qualifications or have the course designed to be "dyslexia friendly". Almost all of our teachers, including mainstream teachers, have received instruction in the needs of dyslexic pupils. In this way we avoid as far as possible the need to take children out of important curriculum lessons for one to one lessons.

The teaching methods we have introduced for our dyslexic pupils benefit all pupils, not only dyslexic ones. This is evident, for example, in the advance in literacy and numeracy scores being achieved by mainstream pupils in nationally standardised tests and in the teaching of "touch typing" to all pupils at an early age.

Full dyslexia support is usually provided in small specialist classes with intensive work on literacy and numeracy skills and will usually include someone to one lessons. Since no two children have exactly the same needs, we specialise in providing a bespoke programme of educational support to our pupils which we adapt as they progress and their needs change. Some pupils need only limited support but experience has shown us that they will get better benefit from this after a period of more intensive support.

Occupational Therapy and Speech and Language Therapy are available as extras.

Extras

DT materials - £25 per term; Dance (where applicable) - £25 per term; Music (where applicable and includes use of violin or clarinet) £30 per term; Insurance (currently £5.95 per term); optional clubs after school £65-£90 per term.

Exam fees are charged as extras as are the costs of school outings. (The cost of these outings will be advised to parents in advance.)

The fee for a Speech and Language assessment is £325 and for an Occupational Therapy Assessment upwards from £295 depending on need. Therapy fees for both are based on a rate of £65 per hour to include time taken in the preparation of reports and related administration. If a programme of therapy is recommended, you will be advised of the time and cost involved.

Additional one to one lessons are also available as an extra at a fee of £330 per weekly lesson per term.
